Show Growth

of English Language

Amazing growth of the English language, surpassing that of any other in the past 100 years. In illustrations given by the Neue Zeitung, English was spoken by 20,000,000 persons in 1800, while at the present time it is spoken by 100,000,000 persons.

The newspaper says the rate of growth has far outstripped all other languages, and that there is no other world where English is not spoken. German was spoken by 100 persons a century ago and now by 80,000,000 and 90,000,000.

The "Dutch" languages increased from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000; Swedish from 2,000,000 to 7,000,000; and Danish from 1,000,000 to 5,000,000. The growth of Latin languages on the other hand has been rapid, with Italian in the lead. Spoken by 21,000,000 a century ago, it is now spoken by 45,000,000, while French, which was second in increase, is now spoken by 35,000,000.

English is used by 50,000,000, French by 35,000,000, and German by 30,000,000. The growth of English is the most rapid of all, and it is understood by an additional 75,000,000 foreigners.

Male Hornbill True to Mate in Confinement

The nesting habits of the rhinoceros hornbill, a large and peculiar bird of the Malay peninsula, Borneo and Sumatra, are said to be very extraordinary. After pairing, the hornbills select a hollow tree, which the female enters. Then, with the assistance of the male, she remains outside, and the male remains outside until only a small slit is left open, through which she can thrust her long, narrow bill. During the entire period of laying and incubating the eggs and the growth of the young to the flying age, the female remains imprisoned in the trunk. The male, free on the outside to do as he pleases, remains nevertheless faithful to his mate, returning frequently with food, which he deposits in her bill through the slit in the tree, and otherwise assiduously attends to her needs.

Bagpipes in History

That bagpipes did not originate in Scotland is revealed in an article in Time, the Newsmagazine. "The bagpipe has a place in Genesis," says Time. "In Egypt it was called the asaf and was piped ceremonially. In Rome it was called tibia utricularis. Colleges were formed for its instruction; Nero piped. Invading Romans took it to Britain. Early Britons named it the choros. Itinerant pipers carried it further into the Highlands and Ireland. The weird Asiatic music appealed to Celtic and Gaelic imaginations and stuck with them." According to Time both Marie Antoinette and Henry VIII piped, while Schubert and Handel wrote pieces for it. King George greatly enjoys the music of his royal piper, as did Queen Victoria.

Red Hair in Disfavor

Red hair was no novelty in ancient Egypt and evidently no deterrent either. Some of the female mummies discovered in the Nile delta are covered in smudged black wigs which fit snugly over their own natural red tresses.

Both "Thirty-Two"

According to Jean and Jane, two sixteen-year-old twins, answering questions about themselves gets rather monotonous. Recently they determined they would have a little fun out of it. It started when a new girl at their store where they work part time asked:

"How old are both of you girls?"

Jean correctly replied: "Both of us are thirty-two!"

"Thirty-two!" the new girl exclaimed, "why don't you look as though you were more than sixteen?"

Invented Monkey-Wrench

It is supposed that the word "monkey" in monkey-wrench is a corruption of the proper name Monckton. There is a tradition that wrenches with moving jaws adjustable by a screw first were made by a London blacksmith named Charles Monckton, and that the implements were called Moncke wrenches, owing to popular ignorance as to the origin of the word, it was corrupted to monkey.

Wheat Not Wild Plant

Wheat grows wild nowhere in the world. Botanists have never found a wild wheat that can be regarded as the direct progenitor of the cultivated wheat plant. This grain has been under cultivation so long that its wild progenitor is unknown. Its earliest antecedents history and evidence furnished by archeologists shows that it was cultivated already in the Stone Age. Exchange.

Earth's Loneliest Spot

H. G. Moore, traveler and lecturer, says that when he touched the island of Telatan in China in February, 1929, there were 150 inhabitants. This island has been designated "the loneliest populated spot on all the earth's surface" and as the "farthest thing of all Great Britain's outposts."

Ginkgo Tree Unchanged

Through the Centuries

The ginkgo has an ancient history found in the wonder book of the rocks. It has come down to the present, scientists say, for perhaps ten million years so little changed that it is difficult, if not indeed impossible, to find any essential difference between the fossil leaf impressions that were buried in the mud millions of years ago and the leaves from the living tree.

The family group of the ginkgo was at one time abundant and widely distributed, as the records of the rocks show, but it is now represented, botanists say, by a single species ginkgo biloba, so different from any other tree that it forms a group all alone.

A striking feature of the tree is its variation of leaf in size and outline. The large bilobed leaves, found on the long branches, recall most clearly the ancestral forms. The leaves of the short spur-like shoots are smaller and more gently lobed, while the fruiting branches are conspicuously for clusters of small leaves entirely without lobes.

On close examination all of these leaves are extended like a lady's fan, but were delicately constructed.

Recognition Gained by Pose as English Artist

A number of years ago a young American artist sought a position on a certain eastern newspaper. His work was admirable, but there was no vacancy. Undeterred, he applied at other newspaper offices, but with out success. Starvation and a hall room overlooking a back yard stared him in the face.

At that time, foreign artists were in demand. The young fellow changed his name and inserted a hyphen to give it a ritzy atmosphere, and then turned himself into the first editor who had printed bearing a London address.

The busy editor, having forgotten his face, listened to his story. He was an English artist. Just arrived. He would take the country by storm. The editor believed it, for the drawings were excellent.

The artist was set to work and his name emblazoned on billboards and trucks. It wasn't long, however, before the editor discovered the hoax. Instead of firing the man, he kept him on the staff.

"Anybody who had the nerve to pull a stunt like that," said the editor to me, "deserves a job. He fooled me completely and any guy who can get away with that is a lulu."

The editor insisted that the artist resume his right name. It is only fair to say that the perpetrator of the hoax made good and is still earning an excellent living with his pen.—Washington Star.

Great Commanders Not Famed as Rifle Shots

The great Napoleon, being economically minded, would have been gratified to know that his "fowling piece" brought $1,000 second hand at a recent sale in Paris.

Bonaparte, educated as an artillery man, was a "big gun" man in his military attitude and depended largely on his artillery and cavalry sabres to win glory. As a handler of small arms he was a true artilleryman.

The Little Corporal was a good shot and sport did not appeal to him perhaps for that reason. Students of the intimate details of his life recall that on one of the few occasions when he was hunting for game his entire bag consisted of his favorite dog.

His great adversary, the duke of Wellington, was an better. Jack Shellevy, in his memoirs describing a day's hunting with him, says:

"The horn of Waterloo was a very wild shot. After wounding a retriever and peppering a keeper's gaiters, he emptied the barrel of an old woman washing clothes at her cottage window."

Severe Old Laws

Back in the Seventeenth century when Boston was only a town, one of the laws enacted by the general court provided that suicides were not to be buried in a burial ground, but on the side of a public highway, with a cartload of stones dumped on the grave as a mark of public contempt.

Other laws of the time provided for a "strange" celebration for feet of offenders and for a "strange" celebration for the penalties of 25 floggings to one's deceased wife's clothes for a husband's conduct could be punished by having them in suit water. Sabbath desecrators were confined in a cage in front of the town house and a hole was bored in the bridge of the nose-plate with a hot iron.—Detroit News.

Cure Worse Than the Bite

Crossing the English channel was a worse business in early days than now. This is how our ancestors sought to evade unpleasant effects: "Take one ounce of slurrup of clove gillyflowers, one drachm of confectio alchermes, one ounce and a half of horrage water and the like of mint water, one ounce of mountford water and as much cinnamon water, temper all these together in a cordial and take a spoonful at a time when at sea."

Indians' Basket Granary

A large basket granary, used by Pacific coast Indians to store acorns, one of their chief foods, on exhibition at the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, is shaped like a beehive. It is made by twisting willow withes and the leaves left on into a rope-like form, which is then coiled to make the receptacle. There is a mouth in the top with a cover. The granary rests on a platform of poles covered to keep it out of reach of rodents.

Swiss Superstition

Right, one of the most famous mountains of the Swiss Alps has once many landladies in its time. Some of them have cost many lives, and buried whole villages at its foot. An age-old legend narrates these slides to the hard-heartedness of the people, who are supposed to have incurred the anger of the dwarfs by refusing them hospitality.—Gas Logic.

Aluminum Alloy Formed

Aluminum is combined with other metals, according to reports of processes developed by a San Francisco inventor, to form valuable alloys. With gold, a hard, light alloy is prepared; a silver mixture so hard that it can be sharpened to a razorlike edge is also made, and copper is made suitable for use in tools.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Adamson's Balsam, that wonderfully reliable cough medicine stopped this boy's coughing spells with two doses.

As quick as it touches the inflamed throat it relieves soreness. Quickly relaxes throat muscles and expels phlegm. Being free from irritation and sticky infected phlegm—coughing stops.

Other ingredients attack the germs at seat of trouble and in a day or two all danger is gone.

Because Adamson's Balsam works so quickly and surely—it's the favorite all over New England. Contains no harmful drugs, or chloroform. Try it for colds, sore throat, bronchitis or plain cough. 50c and $1. At all drugstores.

Graphic Outlines of History

CHICAGO IN 1673

The site of Chicago was first visited by Marquette and Joliet, French missionaries and explorers, in 1673. Permanent settlement was retarded by Indian hostilities. Because of the ideal location on the Lakes, however, it soon became a great trading center, and gradually grew into the great city it is to-day.

The Oyster Expert

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

"IF YOU pass up Jim Crane—well, you needn't come to me for sympathy if you never get as good a chance again. That's all." Bruce Bordon spoke with the full authority of twenty-two years to his twenty-year-old sister, Jane. They were sitting together alone in the Bordon living room. Bruce had noticed for the first time that Jane was not wearing her engagement ring.

Bruce demanded explanations with brotherly exactitude, and Jane had in a manner that Bruce considered much too flip, announced that she had broken with Jim and was glad she had done so.

"Sis, you're crazy," Bruce announced. "You'd be damned lucky to marry a man like Jim Crane. I guess you don't realize what his standing is. Why, he's barely thirty, and it's generally acknowledged that he knows more about oysters than any man in this country. I guess if you knew how the fellows admire him at college you'd be sorry for what you've done."

"It's a crusty old professor, and as absent-minded as the worst of them," snipped Jane. "That's the trouble. We'd only been engaged two months, and three times in that space Jim forgot to call for me when he had promised to."

"Signs of genius, sis; signs of genius," commented Bruce; but Jane was not to be persuaded.

So matters stood between Prof. James Crane and his erstwhile fiancée, Jane Bordon. Meanwhile, the professor perceptibly lost weight and became more absent-minded than ever. After two weeks of the severed engagement she had reached the point where she admitted to herself that she longed for the sight of Jim Crane.

It happened that week that there was the "Ocean Front Exhibit." Some interested projector of the affair had given a number of admission tickets to the secretary of Bruce's fraternity.

Bruce gave one to Jane and one to Jim. Jane went alone—but Jim took his five-year-old niece, Lucille.

A bus ride, thrilling for Lucille, brought them to the door of the exhibition hall, and before many minutes had passed Lucille's eyes were agog with admiration of the gay lights and gaily decorated booths. What took her eye from the first was a copper booth set up to advertise a newly opened stretch of seashore. The booth consisted of a space twenty feet square filled with white sand from the beach. At the back was a canvas drop painted to resemble the far horizon of ocean and sky.

Professor James Crane spied not very far off a booth set up by the State fisheries. There was a special display showing work in oyster culture.

"Suppose you stay here a few minutes, Lucille," he suggested, "and I'll go over to that booth and pretty soon I'll come back."

Meanwhile Jane Bordon had arrived. She looked about but saw nothing that especially interested her. She approached the Orchard Bench exhibit and spied Lucille. In a second she had crowded down beside her and was asking her a dozen questions.

"Uncle Jim's going to look at something and left me here," said Lucille. "It's a perfect shame," exclaimed Jane. "He's probably forgotten all about you. You come with me. I'll take you home." And under her breath she added, "I'll teach Jim a lesson."

Going home to the Crane house, Jane had misgivings. She would, of course, be giving James Crane a scare, and she had no real right to walk off with his niece. Still she would be teaching him a lesson, and the whole thing gave her an excuse to go to the Crane house.

She found no one in but the cook, so she decided to spend the remainder of the afternoon on the grounds of the Crane place, playing with Lucille. But she had only played about fifteen minutes when she saw the long shadow of Jim Crane speeding toward her on the grass.

"I suppose you are perfectly furious with me," she defended, "but really—" "Furious? Why should I be furious?" queried the professor.

"For taking Lucille away. It must have given you a dreadful fright but really you ought to be ashamed for leaving the child there all alone."

"I knew where she had gone," said Jim, beaming. "I had no reason for alarm. I asked the young woman in charge of the booth where the child had gone and she said with a lady whom Lucille seemed to know—a very pretty lady."

"How could you tell from that?" asked Jane, blushing.

"Because you're the only very pretty lady that Lucille and I know," said the absent-minded professor, looking intently into Jane's face. Her eyes fell.

Then he took her two hands in his and he looked at Jane and Jane looked at him, and it was perfectly obvious to both that their engagement was renewed.

Look With Disfavor on Abnormality of Genius

The aberrations of genius have not invariably confined themselves to mere feats of genial absent-mindedness. The lives of Bunyan, Swift, Byron, Beethoven and even Thomas Carlyle are examples of the tragic forms which the abnormality of genius will sometimes assume.

Genius, especially musical, poetic and literary genius, has often been allied with a pathological condition of the mind which borders upon insanity. And the fact that the eccentricity of genius did not more frequently cross the border line must be attributed to the social conditions under which those men of genius lived; for society in the past was more tolerant of eccentricity than it is today.

And here, perhaps, is the real cause of that lack of genius which we are so often told is characteristic of the present age. It is possible that the Twentieth century, with its tendency to standardize not only means of production but even ways of thought, will not tolerate that independence or eccentricity of mind which has so often been the accompaniment of creative genius. If John Bunyan, for example, had been living today, he would have been cured of his megalomania or else incarcerated in an asylum; in neither case, it is safe to say, would he have produced the "Pilgrim's Progress."

Difference in the Sexes at Periods of Growth

"There is a marked difference between boys and girls in the way they grow, particularly during adolescence."

This is the opinion of a well-known woman authority on child welfare, who has observed about 5,000 children over a period of eleven years and has followed about 700 of them to adult growth.

"Growth in the girl practically ceases between fifteen and sixteen, and in many cases earlier," she said. "But in the boy this is prolonged until eighteen and often later. The girl, having to get her growth over in a much shorter period and doing it in rather a jerky way, tends to go through a phase lasting from twelve to eighteen months when she is disinclined for any physical or mental exercise, and welcomes group control and routine."

"The boy, on the other hand, tends to have a marked freeing of energy and wants to undertake some particular individual task outside routine and tends to resent group control."

Some Call It a Depot Now

Uncle Hiram was coming to visit his city nephew and the nephew was looking forward to the visit with some uncertainty. He had warned Uncle Hiram that he had changed since the days on the farm. But he didn't realize just how tremendously he had improved till he read Uncle Hiram's telegram.

"Meet me at the Grand Central depot at 2:15."

"The Grand Central depot," he laughed. But the laugh had a guilty sound.

If hadn't been so many years, he remembered since he had called a station a depot, and made fun of the Up boys, the town snobs, who were very superior and called it the "terminal."

Let Fortune Escape

How a fortune was missed as the result of a Gold coast prospector's ignorance of geology was revealed by Sir Albert Kitson at a meeting of the British association.

The prospector in search of gold dug a hole and unearthed manganese ore. Thinking it was iron ore, he took no notice of it.

A geologist found the old hole and realized the value of the ore. The spot has since proved to be one of the largest and richest deposits of manganese ore in the world.

Hard to Do

It was all on account of the labels Doctor Gass had to send a box of pills to a patient, while there were half a dozen live chickens to be delivered to one of his friends.

The labels got mixed and the messenger delivered the pills to the doctor's friend.

So far not much harm had been done, but the patient was pained on receiving a hamper of live fowls and an envelope containing the following instructions: "Two of these to be swallowed every half hour in water."

Gregorian Calendar

The term "calendar month" is applied either to the months as divided in the Gregorian calendar—such as January, February and March—or to the period between the date of one month and the corresponding date in the succeeding month; as, from March 15 to April 15. When the succeeding month does not have a corresponding date the last date of that month is taken; as, from January 30 to February 29.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Indians Are Born Artists

Art is innate to the Indian, not local. Why do GOODYEAR tires far outsell any other tires

...if any other tires are "better" or even as good

If you are told that some other tire "has a better tread than the Goodyear."

Stop and think, if this is actually true, why millions more people buy Goodyear Tires.

If you are told that some other tire "has a better carcass than the Goodyear."

Before you accept such a statement, stop and think why millions more people buy Goodyear Tires.

There is nothing in the world which compels car owners to choose Goodyear Tires.

If any other tire offered any advantages over a Goodyear, would not the public be buying that other make in largest numbers?

If any other tire equaled a Goodyear, would it not be as popular as Goodyear?

Instead, you find Goodyear producing MILLIONS MORE TIRES than any other company—outdistancing all competition by greatly increasing lengths each year. Stop and think WHY.

Most car owners have had years of experience with tires. They compare their experiences with those of their friends. Tire buyers are wise, very wise, today. Enthusiastic "talk," strong "claims," advertising that promises everything—your experienced car owner is little impressed by such salesmanship.

The one thing, however, which continues to sell him is this fact, which checks with his personal experience and that of his friends: MILLIONS MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES because billions of miles of motoring over roads everywhere continually prove Goodyear Tires to be the best.

Best—not by any small margin—but best by so marked a degree in life, traction, mileage and freedom from trouble that it means a great many dollars saved each year to always buy Goodyears!

THE DOOR OF LILAC GLASS

(By D. J. Walsh)

THE auction was half over. The crowd surged eagerly after the auctioneer toward the best furniture that stood on the porch. The bidding had been only half-hearted thus far for the time of autumn in the crisp air had made sluggish pulses tingle and the acquisition of fruit jars with battered tops and worn rag mats had not stimulated the onlookers to any degree.

Now, however, there were interested expressions and the woman in the fur forgot to frown when her neighbor elbowed her. There was a piano of New York make and a delightful little period desk with a tiny compartment behind a door of lilac-colored glass.

"I can't see how a woman who could appreciate a desk like that could ever have lived in this dandy little town," muttered the fur-coated one to her companion. "There were rag rugs here."

Her hostess, a townsman, flushed and pulled back the little girl who, taking advantage of her mother's preoccupation was pulling the tail of a police dog, which was being held in leash with some difficulty. "Don't do that, Doty, that dog will bite you." "She never minds. Let her get bitten," answered the guest indifferently. "I shall bid on that desk."

The dark-haired girl holding the great dog looked white and spent as she moved away, the chain wound around her slender wrist.

"You'd do better to stay away, Betty," murmured a sympathetic voice; "it only hurts you to see strangers touch your cousin's things. What she ever did with that desk is more than I can understand. If only she had had it reconditioned."

"Aunt Rose meant me to have the little place," there was an intense longing in the young face and her friend noted that the soft brown eyes turned involuntarily toward an upper window across the street where Betty's aged mother sat watching the sale of the only home she'd known for years. The losing of the expected and promised inheritance meant that Betty must defer her marriage as she was her mother's sole support and instead of marrying Bert and settling down in the cottage, she must pay rent as well as board.

"Can't see, Betty, why you hang around," commented a clear loud voice; "you know that everything is left to me. I say: sell off all the junk and get real money for it." Betty regarded her distant relative without enthusiasm. "You know that Cousin Rose devoted the place to me. If I choose to bid on anything of hers I surely lose the right."

"Surely," returned the woman coldly. "If you can pay the price. No credit, remember."

Betty turned away. "Well, start this desk at $5. Who'll give me $50?" The auctioneer's hawklike eyes swept the crowd.

The white face up at the window was pressed against the pane and Betty caught her small, gloved hand. She knew her mother wanted that little desk intensely and she had determined to get it for her, no matter how the bids went. "The invalid had seemed to have some deeper feeling than Betty could comprehend concerning the desk and married bit of furniture. "Seems, Betty, that I must have it," she had said.

But, when the bids, raised by the fur-coated mother of the spoiled child, reached $50 Betty caught her breath. If she met this price it meant she must forego her new winter coat that she had planned for and—going stabbly when Bert loved to see her took nice.

"Fifty-two-fifty, who'll give me fifty-five?" droned the auctioneer. "Can't give this desk away. Come now, fifty-five."

Betty had handed her dog over to her neighbor and now stood hesitating. The desk wasn't worth that money to her. If only her mother had set her heart on some trifle. Uncertainly she looked up. Her mother had raised the window to listen to the bids and Betty saw the gray head turn to her. She realized that her mother had given up hope when she heard the price.

"Fifty-five," cried Betty clearly. "Absurd," snorted the guest from the city.

Betty gave the girl clerk her check and watched the trundle turn for her dog.

"Run along and settle that desk," said the woman in the fur coat sniggering. "That old Joe bid up the price because she saw I wanted the desk. It's just I'll teach her a lesson."

But delighted at the spiteful order dished across the lawn.

Betty lifted the little desk and, waving good-bye to the mother started to carry it home.

A crowd now surged to the planned to the excitement incident upon the auction of the big police dog a small boy took advantage of his unwatched mother and started a small car backed well up on the grounds.

Betty, carrying her desk, looked up as she heard a shrill cry and saw that the car child, who was right in the path of the wagon carrying the desk, was about to see the child's danger because she was small and her coat a russet brown that blended in with the dying grass and shrubs.

Jews as Fighting Race
It's a singular thing that people in general should hold so strongly to the idea that the Jew is one who practices the virtue. If it is a virtue, of non-resistance.

There is nothing in history to justify such a view and, indeed, everything to prove that he was no more meek than that turbulent, rebellious figure, Moses. That in the Middle Ages and later, in Russia, he was massacred cruelly and completely and did not flinch was due to the fact that, having no weapons, he could be crushed by armed mobs and licensed soldiery.

Long before Napoleon placed Jews among his marshals the fighting quality of the race was known and praised. From the days of the Maccabees on there was no insurgent so much dreaded by the Roman as the people of that narrow littoral that lies between Syria and the Egyptian outposts.

The story of the World War is full of the names of Jews in all the armies, and very certainly the British are not soon going to forget the gallant soldier from the Anzac forces who repeatedly swam ashore at Gallipoli and lighted flares on the beach to guide the incoming boat.—Louisville Herald Post.

Crows Appear Unable to Count Above Three

One writer says crows cannot count in Kent and another says they can in Staffordshire. Many years ago an old farmer in Queensland told me that they could count up to three.

The crows ate his maize but kept away if he hid among it, so he tried going with a friend, who presently went back. The result was that the crows kept away. He tried going with two friends, who both went back. Result the same. But when he himself went back the crows at once returned to the maize.

After many trials he concluded that they could only count up to three. If four or more men went into the maize and three came out again the crows went to the maize, and though many were shot the others never learned to count beyond three. I suppose crows are like men, some of whom never seem to learn how many beans make five.—London Times.

Three Forms of Honey

Honey may be had in three forms—in the comb, extracted and granulated, but only occasionally in the latter form. Before the passage of the pure food and drugs act much adulterated honey was offered for sale. When unadulterated persons saw crystallized honey they often jumped to the conclusion that the presence of cane sugar was the cause of the granulation. To allay that suspicion the bottles of honey bear it to about 145 degrees Fahrenheit and seal it in jars while heated, which greatly retards and in many cases prevents granulation.

If it is desired to bring crystallized honey again to the liquid form, gentle heating in a water bath will give that result without in any way changing the character of the honey.

Furs Long Prized

Fur history carries the reader back 10,000 years, further indeed than there are records of its use. The Bible refers to Adam's and Eve's use of furs and later to other and badder skins used in the tabernacle.

Queen Semiramis, 2,182 years before Christ, brought 8,000 Ugar skins back to Babylon after an Indian campaign. The story of Jason and his quest for the Golden Fleece is nothing if not a chronicle of the furrier's trade. During the first 1,500 years of our era, Byzantium, or Constantinople as we call it now, was a far center comparable to Leipzig, Germany, at present.

X-Ray in Criminology

That a man is a carpenter may be revealed under the X-ray by the shape of the bones in his fingers. This is one of the novel conclusions of a recent investigation that recalls the fictional detective feats of Sherlock Holmes.

Experts found that peculiarities in the shape of a workman's fingers revealed that they had long used a plane or similar wood-working tool. It is hoped eventually to gather sufficient data to detect any man's occupation by his physical characteristics.

Island Status Unsettled

Wrangell Island is in the Arctic Ocean, about 100 miles from the St. Lawrence coast. A harbor in the southern part is in latitude 70 degrees 57 minutes north and longitude 175 degrees 10 minutes west. The island is about 10 miles long and 25 miles wide. It was sighted in 1907 by the captain of a United States sailing vessel. In 1908 officers from the United States Navy landed on the island and claimed it for this country. The question of ownership is unsettled.

Jewel-encrusted Bible

The world's costliest Bible is that taken with other treasures, from the palace of the emperors at Tezskore. Some of its covers, which measure only five and a half inches by seven and a half, is encrusted with diamonds and emeralds in the form of a forest spray, with an intervening monogram "A" of rubies, and on the other is a cross of fine diamonds. The clasp is of sapphires, and the text is in tiny gold leaf print.

Age of Superstition
It is said that during the nineteenth century a Swiss naturalist and physical geologist of the name of Thurgood kept some specimens in a bottle of olive oil and that these insects were feared by the people as diabolical beasts. This opinion was based on the fact that the people of the city regarded the oil as a devil in disguise, and a place of evil was finally set up in the city where the oil was kept, and it was with an awful shriek that the people fled from it.

Attention has just been attracted to the remains of a prehistoric animal with bones that worked both ways. Possibly an early version of the fifth passenger in a cab.

GIRL FINDS IDEAL ON AD POSTER, THEY ARE ENGAGED

Pretty Young Typist Goes on Trail of Model and Now Wears Diamond Ring.

Montreal.—A girl's discovery of her ideal man on a picture poster has had a romantic sequel.

Everybody has seen those posters of strong, silent men pointing accusing masculine fingers from boardings and demanding to know why the world at large does not smoke a certain brand of cigarettes or buy a certain make of underwear.

Miss Gladys Hewett, a pretty young Brighton typist, passed one on her way to the office every morning. It depicted a handsome young man with crisp curly hair, and Miss Hewett sighed a long, deep sigh.

"Why doesn't one meet men like that in real life?" she said to herself. And then dawned the great idea.

Miss Hewett sat down and typed off a letter to the firm concerned, asking if by any chance the poster had been drawn from life, and if so, would they forward her letter to the original. In the envelope she inclosed her photograph.

Miss Hewett told the sequel of her strange romance.

"I got a reply stating that there was an original of the poster, and that my letter had been forwarded to him," she said. "A few days later came a letter from the young man himself. He inclosed his photograph and asked me if I would write to him."

"He proved to be a wireless operator in the merchant service. His brother is a poster artist and used him as a model when he was home on leave."

"Recently he came home from a long voyage in the East," Miss Hewett proudly exhibited a half loat diamond ring on the third finger of her left hand.

"And now we are engaged to be married," she smiled happily.

Prepares for Trek by 3,000 Reindeer

Ottawa.—A trek of 3,000 reindeer from near Nome, Alaska, to the east bank of the Mackenzie river is being prepared, and this fall the huge herd will move across the face of the Arctic and 3,000 United States immigrants will become Canadians.

R. T. and A. E. Forsell made an investigation a year ago, and the government decided to buy 3,000 reindeer from Loman Brothers of Alaska. These animals will provide a new source of food for the Eskimo in the western Arctic and also Canada a new fauna in the northern Yukon.

A. E. Forsell has gone West, and will set up in Nome from Vancouver, making his way to Elephant Point where he will make the necessary arrangements for the transport of the animals. The herd will be the most and finest product ever carried out of the driving of these seal with animal, over mountain and stream, tundra and tundra, for a distance of more than 1,000 miles. It will be October, 1931, before the animals from Alaska to the Yukon is complete.

The contract for the delivery of the reindeer was the first of the Mackenzie trek. It is expected that the animals will be in the Yukon in the autumn of 1931.

A small but powerful animal, the reindeer has been kept at Vancouver for the department of the interior. This will be taken care of by the department of the interior, and then will come down to Alaska, where it will be used to transport the animals needed for the trek.

Commuter Ready Victim of Star Salesmanship

There is an art in salesmanship. This has been observed before, but it was made plain to the commuter when he bought for the princely sum of $20 a dilapidated car minus paint and with all the fenders buckled.

Knowing nothing about cars, as soon as trouble developed, and it wasn't very long before it did, the commuter hauled the wreck to the garage. The garage man was a salesman. He looked the car over and he didn't even smile. He handled it like a high-priced purchase. Then he turned to the commuter.

"Been driving long?" he asked.

"No," the commuter admitted.

"Well," responded the garage man in a confidential manner, "I'll give you a tip. There are a lot of car thieves around. When you leave your car even for a few minutes, turn the ignition key and take it with you. To make doubly sure that nobody steals the car, turn off the gas."

The commuter's opinion of the car soared high. He hadn't considered the probability that any thief would waste his time on the wreck that he owned. If the garage man thought enough of it to warn him then it must be a good car. Probably a high-grade engine he mused. In fact, he was so impressed that when the garage man handed him a bill for $75 for 30 minutes' work he didn't even feel annoyed.—New York Sun.

The commuter's opinion of the car soared high. He hadn't considered the probability that any thief would waste his time on the wreck that he owned. If the garage man thought enough of it to warn him then it must be a good car. Probably a high-grade engine he mused. In fact, he was so impressed that when the garage man handed him a bill for $75 for 30 minutes' work he didn't even feel annoyed.—New York Sun.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

L. A. Edwards, Pastor
930 Church School, Miss Ida Packard, Superintendent.

10:45 Morning Worship. Subject of the Pastor's sermon, "Fable or Fact?" How much of our Christian Religion do we take seriously? Do we believe in the Christian Religion because of what it has done, what it is doing or what we expect it to do?

Do we take our Religion, as we do quinine, to safeguard our future; or like pure water for the joy and refreshment it brings?

If there were no church in this community would you give time and money to have one organized? Why?

7:30 Union Thanksgiving Service in the Methodist Church.

It is hoped that our people will respond in large numbers to this call to give thanks to Almighty God for His manifold mercies.

On account of the Union Service there will be no meeting of the Comrades of the Way.

The Ladies' Club will meet with Mrs. Percy Brink on Thursday afternoon. Don't forget the Fashion Revue at O'Brien Hall on Friday evening. Tickets on sale at Bosserman's Drug Store.

Oxford County United Parish
Embracing Albany, Stoneham, North Lovell and the Waterfalls. Pastoral Staff: Revs. W. T. Bull, B. F. Wentworth, A. C. Townsend

Last Sunday, in all the Churches having morning services and Sunday Schools, special sermons were preached on the place of the Teacher in the work of the Church. Then followed a series of consecration of the Officers and Teachers of the schools.

Rev. B. F. Wentworth, Minister of Religious Education, is still doing religious work in the day schools of North Lovell and Albany, and the work is being appreciated in those communities. Plans are under way for similar work in other communities.

The showing of moving pictures is to be resumed this week. A picture will be shown at South Waterford on Wednesday evening, and East Stoneham on Thursday evening, preceded by a supper, and on Friday evening at North Lovell, also preceded by a supper.

On Saturday evening of this week the new Wilkins Community House at Waterford will be dedicated at a social gathering. The memorial tablet to Miss Susan Hamlin Wilkins will be unveiled with remarks by Rev. A. C. Townsend.

Chas. B. Hamlin will speak of Miss Wilkins' early life and teaching in Waterford. Dr. Eliot Bishop of Brooklyn will speak of her mature life and work as an educator in Brooklyn.

These parts will be interspersed with music and followed with light refreshments, after which opportunity will be given to inspect the building, and for the young people to engage in a few social games.

On Thanksgiving Day at noon, the new bell in the tower of the new Church will be rung for the first time as a call to all to pause for a moment of silent thanksgiving and prayer.

The Finance Committee met last Friday and adopted the following plan for handling the Staff Fund.

1. All money given for Larger Parish purposes may be received by members of the Staff to be handed to the United Parish Treasurer.

2. The Executive Committee and Staff shall plan the items of the budget at the first of the Parish year. Items may be added during the year only by vote of the Executive Committee.

3. An operating fund of $100.00 shall be advanced to the Staff for moving pictures, hospital and miscellaneous expenses, reports to be made to the executive committee.

4. The Executive Committee and Staff will make some plan for "O.K."

ing all other bills before sending to the Parish Treasurer for payment.
5. Financial reports shall be made at each Council meeting.
